Exhibit 99.1 – Press Release

New Oriental Refutes Allegations Made by OLP Global

BEIJING, Nov. 20, 2011 — New Oriental Education and Technology Group Inc. (the “Company” or “New Oriental”) (NYSE: EDU), the largest provider of private educational services in China, today responded to allegations contained in a report issued by OLP Global.

Michael Yu, New Oriental’s Chairman and CEO, commented, “In recent weeks, OLP Global has been seeding unfounded rumors about New Oriental in an attempt to damage our reputation and drive down our share price. These ridiculous allegations are utterly without merit. Since listing on the NYSE in 2006, New Oriental has built an impeccable reputation for maintaining exemplary standards in corporate governance, transparency and investor communications.”

The Board of Directors and management of New Oriental wish to state clearly that the allegations contained in OLP Global’s report dated November 17, 2011 are unfounded and untrue. All financial information in the Company’s consolidated financial statements included in the SEC filing of its annual report on Form 20-F, are truthful representations of New Oriental’s consolidated financial results and have been audited in accordance with US GAAP by a Big 4 independent registered public accounting firm.

The crux of OLP Global’s allegations is that New Oriental failed to eliminate inter-company transactions upon consolidation of the Company’s financials, thus overstating revenues by approximately US$167 million and net income by approximately US$137 million from calendar years 2007-2010. New Oriental wishes to make clear that it fully eliminated inter-company transactions upon consolidation in its consolidated financial statements and continues to do so in accordance with US GAAP, as reflected in its annual 20-F filings with the SEC, the latest of which was filed as recently as October 14, 2011.

Furthermore, New Oriental believes that OLP Global’s analysis (1) is shoddy, incomplete and erroneous, basing its conclusions on an analysis of just three of the Company’s over 60 business entities; (2) relies on incomplete financial data for the three entities involved, which are culled from various sources, and draws fundamentally flawed comparisons between calendar year tax filings (December 31 year-end) and the Company’s fiscal year (May 31 year-end) SEC filings; and (3) fails to explain why the Company’s cash balance and short-term investments grew from approximately US$32 million in 2006 to over US$700 million as of August 31, 2011, notwithstanding spending of approximately US$93 million on stock repurchasing over the past several years. For OLP Global’s allegations to hold an indicia of credibility or logic, its report would need to demonstrate a US$137 million shortfall in New Oriental’s cash balance from the Company’s alleged overstating of net income and comprehensively analyze all of the Company’s over 60 business entities. Since no such cash shortfall exists, and since OLP Global’s report addresses just three of the Company’s over 60 business entities, the Company believes the OLP Global research is completely and utterly incomplete, illogical and erroneous and fails the test of common sense and basic accounting principles.
